OFF THE BEATEN TRACK—and blocking Lackawanna traffic yesterday were these cars from a 75-car freight derailed near East Stroudsburg depot. It was worst train derailment of its kind in local area in past 62 years. Sections of track were ripped up. Wheels were torn from bottom of cars.

TILTED TO THE SIDE of main tracks in East Stroudsburg section, these cars kept workers occupied throughout the day yesterday. Hundreds of onlookers crowded streets and fences above wreckage all day. Small army of workmen brought in by railroad worked through the night.

Fire Officials Issue Warning

MONROE COUNTY FIREMEN'S ASSN. last night charged that "sheer carelessness and irresponsibility" on the part of county residents is endangering homes and properties all over the county.

Harvey Burris, president of the Association, said that residents "have got to start using more caution in burning rubbish." Burris said that more than a dozen fires during recent days have been caused by improper burning of garbage or weeds all over the county.

The firemen's spokesman emphasized that "firemen aren't complaining, they'll go right on doing the best job they can no matter what happens." But people have got to realize, Burris said, that all areas of the county are very dry and that wind-whipped rubbish fires sweep very easily out of control.

In some cases, he said, buildings and valuable structures on properties are being endangered without any justifiable cause whatever. No rubbish fire should be started unless someone is there to watch it until it has burned itself out, he said.

In cases where large piles of rubbish are to be burned, the homeowner would be wise to separate it into smaller piles and burn them at different times, he said. Fires should not be started in areas which are surrounded by high weeds, brush or dry grass, he said.

Burris emphasized that Stroud Township firemen have had eight fires in the past two days. In all cases, he said, the spread of the fires could have been prevented by proper guard.

Storm Of Protest Develops Over Bill In Legislature

By Leonard Randolph

A STORM of protest is developing in Monroe County over a bill now pending in the Harrisburg legislature.

The bill — called officially Senate Bill S-35 — would prevent taxing bodies in fourth to eighth class counties from raising their tax income more than a specified amount after county tax equalization goes into effect.

Major reason for local resentment of the bill is the fact that it would, in effect, doom participation by some townships in school building projects.

In essence, S-35 would amend the Tax Equalization Law for fourth to eighth class counties by requiring political sub-divisions to reduce their tax (or millage) rates as soon as equalization is in effect in the county.

The new bill would force school districts to reduce their tax rates (if necessary, the bill says) so that the "total amount of taxes levied against real estate that year shall not be more than 110 percent of the amount levied the preceding year."

Unfeasible
This would mean — in the case of such townships as Price and Smithfield in the East Stroudsburg Area Jointure — that participation in school construction would be totally unfeasible for at least the one-year period.

Authoritative sources in Harrisburg, however, have indicated that the bill might be amended, if passed this time, so that taxes could be increased only on a "graduated" basis. That would mean that taxes could be raised only a given percentage — perhaps 10 or 15 percent — per year.

The reason the bill has a direct effect on East Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools building plans is basically this:

Price township properties, on the average, are assessed at only about 14 percent of their current value. Smithfield's assessment ratio is about 17 percent.

The primary aim of the tax equalization program is to insure that all taxpayers are paying their fair share of the tax load. This means that all taxpayers owning $10,000 properties would be paying — in theory at least — the same amount of taxes. Properties worth $20,000 would be assessed the same, taxed the same and so on.

United States Resumes Aid To Israel

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP)—The United States signaled a resumption of economic aid to Israel today in a way seemingly calculated to pressure Egypt into closer cooperation with efforts to pacify the Middle East.

State Department press officer Lincoln White disclosed at a news conference that consultations on resuming aid to Israel would start shortly. He said he expected the aid would be resumed after these consultations got under way.

But the press officer went blank when asked whether Egypt and Jordan could expect similar treatment. U.S. aid to these two Arab states was suspended at the same time as aid to Israel—when the Oct. 29 fighting broke out.

Rules

Secretary of State Dulles laid down rules at his March 5 news conference for resuming aid to Egypt. He said a whole series of questions were involved, and listed them as including:

"The reopening of the Suez Canal, the conditions under which it is reopened, the future status of the canal, the treatment of American business people in the area."

Dulles said that, in general, the U.S. aid program—totaling 65 million dollars to the three countries for the current fiscal year starting last July 1—could be resumed when things were returned to their pre-Oct. 29 status.

"There will be nothing automatic about any of these matters," Dulles said, "and probably each country will be dealt with on a country-by-country basis."

Navy Buries Admiral Byrd

WASHINGTON, March 14 (AP)—The Navy buried its most famous explorer, Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, today with the high honors accorded national heroes.

The military high command, representatives of the administration, members of Congress and hundreds of friends attended the chapel ceremony and then followed the casket to the grave in Arlington National Cemetery.

Byrd was buried in the Arlington National Cemetery. He was the first man to fly over the North Pole and the first to lead an expedition to Antarctica.

'Full Service' Expected To Resume On Tracks Today

ARMED WITH floodlights, of creating order out of tangled havoc yesterday at 6:15 a.m. when an eastbound fast freight derailed 1,000 yards west of the borough depot.

Thrown from the rails were 13 cars, Lackawanna officials said. Some of them were tossed over on their sides. Others were lying on their tops, wheels in the air. No one was injured.

Police said six of the cars toppled on their right sides, less than 20 yards from a group of homes on Meyers St.

At 10 last night workers reported to officials that they had "only five cars left to get back on the rails." Officials estimated that this phase of the work would be finished by 3 a.m. today.

If righting of the cars and clearing the tracks proceeded at the rate expected, officials said, "full service" might be resumed this morning on the company's tracks.

By "full service," they emphasized that they did not mean service at regular speeds. Caution would still be exercised in passing over the section of tracks involved, a spokesman said. But regular trains would be able to run this morning, on reasonably accurate schedules, if the tracks were cleared on time.

Last night at 11, the cause of the derailment had still not been determined, a company spokesman said. He said that the train had consisted of a total of 75 cars. It was moving east at a speed of "about 35 miles an hour" the spokesman said.

Engineer on the train was Walter Morris, Scranton. The conductor was Windham Evans, Dunmore. Others on the train: Edward Smith, Stroudsburg, the fireman; J. E. Quinman, Scranton, flagman and George Wascovich, also of Scranton, the head trainman.

Officials said the derailment "started with the 25th car" in the 75-car train. The train was being pulled by four Diesel units. All five first cars were overturned, one landing on its top, the others on their sides.

Between 30 and 40 feet of track at the scene were ripped and mangled in the derailment. The third, slow track, was also damaged.

Most of the cars were loaded with perishable food commodities. Many of these were being carried on the railroad's "piggy-back" system which carries truckloads of commodities across a given route by rail.

The railroad ordered additional supplies of ice to keep the supplies in the cars from spoiling from local ice dealers last night.

Motor traffic in the area was blocked off for a short time. East Stroudsburg Borough Police, headed by chief Travis Seese, succeeded in maneuvering traffic through the area re-routing it to other sections.

Taking part in the traffic relay system with Seese were assistant chief Edward Harloe and patrolmen James Smith, Charles McDonald and Donald Quick.

Railroad officials said that the 22 cars at the head of the train were able to move on to Port Morris shortly after the accident occurred. They were undamaged apparently, officials said.

The first track was cleared to allow passage of another train at 11:10 a.m. At that time a milk train passed through. Ahead of it was a trouble-shooting railroad wrecker engine.

The derailment forced cancellation yesterday morning of the daily "Merchants Express." That train leaves Scranton at 7:15 a.m. They were taken to New York by bus, instead.

The accident completely paralyzed Lackawanna service for a period of five hours. Last night officials said they would "work right straight through" in their attempt to restore service by today.

Yesterday's accident had caused considerable havoc and disruption. But there had been no loss of life in it and no injury.

Yet, in memory, the sight of train cars uprooted from their rigidly disciplined lines can open a man's memory. There was the more recent derailment in Forge Cut and just before that a locomotive slashed into the Delaware River between Portland and Delaware Water Gap.

And that was the way it was with Jake Hill and men who had lived through the late 1800's with him yesterday.

Mistakes occur when a man is overworked or overconfident.

Wreck Sets Thoughts Back Many Years To Train Incidents Of Old

By Leonard Randolph
IN ONE RESPECT it was like any other major accident or disaster.

It set older East Stroudsburg residents digging back in their memories.

One of them was Jacob M. Hill. His memory took him back to "about the year 1895."

"I was just a young sprout then. About 15. But I remember it very clearly," the silver-haired man with the store of borough legend and history in his mind began. Then he went on:

"I was raised in the old Anaslomink Hotel. My parents—John and Mary Hill—ran the hotel. It was right where the post office is now."

"One day, sometime in the Spring, I can't be sure of the date, a coal train stopped on the tracks up on the curve. Another train was following it."

"But the train was too close. The flagman's name was Zant LeBar. He was from Moscow and I remember him well. He told us later he couldn't wave them down and stop them. They ran right straight into the rear of the other train."

"Then LeBar came into the hotel and I opened it up for him. He told me the conductor was killed in the wreck. His name was John Fraunfelter and he was from Scranton."

"When we went out to look at it, it didn't look like much of a wreck, actually. The caboose was completely torn up. But the big thing that made an impression on me was that a man had been killed in it."

"In those days, it wasn't so easy to clear wreckage as it is now. All the derricks were hand-manned." Like other men and women who lived through those early days, the idea of a railroad accident of any kind on local tracks brought back other memories too.

There was the unbelievably paralytic blizzard on March 12 in 1888. "Those trains were snowed in again as soon as they got them shovelled out. It was the worst storm we'd seen around here and it hit the railroad hard."

"I can remember little things that happened then as clearly as

Eisenhower Launches Slow Trip To Bermuda On Board Guided Missile Cruiser Canberra

AT SEA WITH EISENHOWER, March 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower sailed tonight for Bermuda on the guided missile cruiser Canberra after a visit at Norfolk with old comrades in arms.

The warship's 1,200 officers and men stood smartly at attention as the President boarded the brilliantly floodlighted ship at 7:15 p.m.

Minutes later the Canberra cast off her line and eased from her pier at this giant naval base into the smooth waters of Hampton Roads. Then she turned her bow seaward and left the United States astern.

Ship he paused at the rail for a moment to permit photographers on the pier to take his picture, then headed immediately for his quarters.

Prior to sailing, Eisenhower met at Atlantic Supreme Allied Command headquarters at Norfolk with key naval officers of the United States and seven other nations.

The Canberra's four deadly Terrier missiles pointed to the moonlit sky as the ship cut through the water.

After the President boarded the Pennsylvania Should See Fit To Make Corporate Taxes Attractive To Industry

Pennsylvania is badly in need of new industries. The State Department of Commerce is conducting a $200,000 advertising campaign to attract industry and has had some small successes.

But it is handicapped by our high corporation taxes. The Legislature gives every sign of willingness to exempt manufacturers from the capital stock tax beginning next year, it is gratifying to note. But that may not be enough.

The corporate net income tax, raised to six percent last session in the face of evidence that Pennsylvania's high taxes on industry put it at competitive disadvantage with other states, is going to be kept at six percent. That is discouraging news.

State taxes on business and industry are considerably higher than in most other states. This tends to raise the price of goods manufactured in Pennsylvania and puts our corporations at a competitive disadvantage.

Pennsylvania obtains about 25 percent of its state revenue from corporation taxes, against only two or three percent in Ohio. The Universal-Cyclops Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh is turning to Ohio to spend 25 million dollars on an expansion program because of "high taxes and power rates" in Pennsylvania.

Industries can recoup some of their state tax losses by applying them as credits for federal tax purposes, but this maneuver still does not wipe out the disparity that results from Pennsylvania's high corporate tax rate. And it's only natural that industries will locate in states where they can make the most money.

Being an industrial state basically, Pennsylvania's prosperity turns heavily on its industries and its businesses. Those responsible for our taxing policies should take this into consideration in arriving at rates that must be paid by corporations.

Nation's Death Rate Continues To Drop

In all we read about America's great population gains, one factor that never gets enough attention is the drop in the nation's death rate.

Reporting on mortality in 1956, one insurance company develops this point in detail. It says the mortality rate among its policyholders held at 6.2 for each 1,000 persons insured at all ages.

The same rate prevailed in 1955 and 1954. This compares with 6.5 for the years 1951-53.

But the picture was different 40 years ago. In 1911, the first year for which the company has data, the death rate was twice as great as last year.

So America has advanced to the point where an important factor in its growth is the fact that more people are living longer. This is important in our economy, too, as every merchant will tell you.

George Sokolsky Says...

Political Party Platforms Lack Authority Such As Act Of Congress Or Amendment

I was looking at a piece by Roscoe Drummond, the very able writer for the New York Herald Tribune, entitled "Republican Platform Vs. Bricker Amendment."

He raised for me an issue that is very puzzling. From the time of the Declaration of Independence and the adoption of the Constitution, the United States functioned according to a set of political theories which were well understood and over the application of which to current events men differed and argued.

The point that Drummond made was that a paragraph in the Republican platform "dealt a body blow to any Bricker-type amendment which would restrict the treaty-making powers of the President and the Senate." This means an amendment to the Constitution.

Without at all discussing the virtues of the Bricker Amendment but limiting oneself only to the theory of American government, no clause, phrase or paragraph in the platform of any political party possesses the value of an act of Congress or of an amendment to the Constitution.

In fact, the political convention is an extra-legal institution for which no provision has been made in the Constitution and the platform or resolutions of such a party are not in any real sense a binding pledge from which the party or those of its members elected to office may not depart. As a matter of actual practice, they generally do depart far and wide from the platform, forgetting its provisions with the greatest of ease. No Federal law governs the political convention and each party makes its own rules and sets itself up as the sole judge of the propriety of its conduct, except as it may be influenced or affected by public opinion.

Very little business is actually transacted on the convention floor, the noise, excitement, oratory, music and other instruments of pandemonium making it fairly impossible. Since television has become available, the convention is less important than ever, most of the business of the political party being conducted in the privacy of hotel rooms, usually quite distant from the auditorium where the convention is held.

The paragraph to which Drummond referred reads:

"We maintain that no treaty or international agreement can deprive any of our citizens of Constitutional rights."

This, like all other resolutions, is an obiter dictum and has no validity in the law of the land. Even if all conventions of all political parties adopted the same provisions, they would have no validity unless enacted by Congress or formally passed, with great hardship, as an amendment to the Constitution.

No United States Senator or member of the House of Representatives is in any way bound, by law, by the Constitution or by the rules of either House of Congress to abide temporarily or forever by any provision of the platform of his own or any other political party. It is not a matter of law; it could be a matter of choice. A Senator is bound to represent the state which elects him in the Senate of the United States; a Representative is bound by American political theory and by the realities of political practice to abide by the prevailing views of his constituency.

Thus Senators Ives and Javits, Republicans, representing the State of New York in the Senate, adopt an attitude toward the Middle Eastern situation, which most closely reflects the voters' opinions in their state. Equally, Senator Eastland reflects as truly as a gauge public opinion in Mississippi. Nobody represents or reflects the platform of his party.

It would be interesting to know if any Senator or Representative recalls the provisions of the platform of either party. Really, who cares?

The Democratic platform of 1932 was all for economy; it was not long before President Roosevelt employed the New Deal as a device to fight the depression by a redistribution of wealth. This was, at one period, euphemistically called "pump priming."

Whatever it was called, it ushered in an era of spend and spend, tax and tax, which is not yet ended nor is the end in sight. I wonder how much of the Republican platform of 1952 or 1956, President Eisenhower has regarded as binding upon him.

It would be, of course, of some value to know what the philosophy of the two leading parties is and how they differ. Thus far such knowledge has not been available.

And Venice has such charm; Yet Senators are ornery— (Republican or Dem)— They asked me to forsake all this AND SIMPLY VISIT THEM!

Hollywood lost one of its really great artists in William Cameron Menzies who died recently. . . . The son of a Connecticut plumber, he went to Hollywood over a quarter century ago and was for years its foremost art director, his work ranging from such classics as "Gone With The Wind" to Mike Todd's "Eighty Days."

There are no regular schedules of lectures. Students—not instructors—decide what questions to discuss.

Whether they know it or not, this technique isn't new—only formally recognized. In my day, freshmen on up were adept at this identical classroom rigamarole. Maybe we weren't selected from the top honors lists, but honey, we could make with that conversation in Arts Survey 402—same as they are so proudly doing at Ohio State. The point was getting our prof as far from the day's business as was humanly possible.

The harder the subject, the finer were our efforts. A hard core of self-appointed spokesmen in a given course would work together like a well-schooled football team. When one man appeared to have exhausted his questioning, a replacement would take over. Sometimes it took a couple of weeks to discover what pet theories would bring about the desired talkation, protecting us from dull history and frightening chemistry. One elderly prof fancied himself as an athlete.

All Heck broke loose in the little town of Winder, Georgia, one day last spring when Lucy, a big elephant, broke loose from a traveling circus. With the help of most of the local population, Lucy finally was cornered in a barn and chained up. Lucy fell in love with her captor, however. Every time he walked away, she broke the chain and stomped after him.

Police and zoo officials from Atlanta then arrived to take charge. The truck was backed up to Lucy with the rear door wide open, and a patrol car drove her into the truck. The siren's shrill sound brought prompt results.

Lucy flapped her huge ears, and instead of lumbering into the truck, she went into reverse, knocking the patrol car into a pine tree.

Lucy flapped her huge ears, and truck of her own accord. The patrol car, however, will never be the same.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Atomic Committee Halts Destruction Of AEC File

Washington, March 14 — The Atomic Energy Commission is changing its mind about destroying certain very important secret documents.

They deal with the highly controversial issue of radioactive fallout.

The AEC's change of mind is involuntary. The reversal is being imposed on it by the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, headed by Rep. Carl Durham (D., N.C.).

Reason for this unusual crack-down is a sweeping investigation he is initiating of atomic weapons production and radiation and other detection facilities.

Both crucial matters have been under increasing fire in the past year. Within the Atomic Commission itself there is bitter dissension. Equally sharp differences exist among scientists and military authorities. And the angry dispute over nuclear tests, injected into last year's presidential campaign by Adlai Stevenson, is far from quieted.

Representative Durham contemplates the most far-reaching probe of these questions since the AEC was created after World War Two. Cabinet members, military chiefs, top scientists and numerous other leaders will be summoned to testify at private and public hearings. No punches are to be pulled either pro or con.

That's why the AEC has been stopped dead in its tracks in destroying a number of reports and studies on the red-hot issue of radiation.

The Joint Committee was apprized that the commission had applied for permission to do this to the Committee on the Disposition of Executive Papers, headed by Senator Olin Johnson (D., S.C.). Normally, approval of such requests is routine. But not this time.

Acting fast and hard, Durham asked Senator Johnson to rebuff the AEC, which he did forthwith. Durham then followed that up by notifying the Commission to carefully preserve all its documents until the Joint Committee is able to pass on them.

The significance of this back-stage precaution is graphically shown by the nature of one radiation report the AEC proposed destroying, as follows:

"Environmental contamination measurement records, consisting of data indicating the presence and amounts of radioactive materials in samples of air, water, earth, vegetation, filters, and special materials from on-site and off-site locations, collected in establishing appropriate hazard procedures. Also air filter studies consisting of test instrument readings of contamination of air particles; tapes recording radioactivity at time intervals in selected locations throughout the U. S."

Joint Committeemen are hinting that Commission Chairman Lewis Strauss is a major target of the forthcoming investigation. He has long been at loggerheads with leading Committeemen and AEC members, notably Commissioner Thomas Murray, whose term expires June 30. His reappointment is being urged by Republicans and Democrats, but his prospects are not deemed very promising. Strauss is credited with being strongly against him.

What It's About — The scope and purpose of Representative Durham's momentous investigation are detailed in a memorandum to Committee colleagues, as follows:

Effects of radioactive fallout from atomic and hydrogen weapons tests. Limiting the size and frequency of such explosions. Adequacy and accuracy of the U. S. detection system and devices.

Type of nuclear weapons to be produced: big, small, strategic, tactical, etc.?

Commissioner Murray particularly, has raised the last question at a series of private meetings with the Joint Committee. It can be reported he flatly asserted the U. S. already has more H-bombs than it will ever use.

Intelligence authorities have challenged the AEC's effectiveness in detecting Russian atomic tests. These sources doubt the AEC has recorded all of them.

According to the Commission, there have been 46 Soviet nuclear and thermonuclear tests, including the latest announced by the AEC. Against this number the U. S. total is 77 to date.

In his memorandum, Representative Durham stresses the issues of nuclear tests and radioactive fallout.

"There has been considerable concern," he states, "in recent months about the effects of fallout from nuclear weapons tests on human beings, livestock and agriculture. This is indeed a complex problem and one which requires sober and detailed consideration as a matter of urgent national interest. I don't believe anyone knows enough about this vital subject as yet, including the experts."

"It is my plan that we discuss such matters as limiting the size of nuclear weapons to be tested; the accuracy and adequacy of existing detection devices; and associated questions of national policy affecting our nuclear weapons program."

Quick Urges County Home Work Be On Ballot

Commissioners Agree Work Necessary

COUNTY Commissioner Willard Quick yesterday urged his fellow commissioners to put the question of building an addition to the present County Home "directly up to the people."

Quick, talking in a regular Commissioners meeting, said that a question concerning the necessary bond issue to build new facilities should be placed on an election ballot as soon as possible.

Commission chairman John Lesoine and minority commissioner W. Adolph Rake agreed with Quick that the building addition is badly needed.

One of the things most badly needed at the County Home, Lesoine pointed out, is full nursing care. He said that "nearly every case we've had this winter has been a person who needs nursing care of some kind." Some of them need total nursing supervision, he commented.

The matter of raising funds to build the addition caused Rake to comment: "Let's quit kidding the people, they're going to have to pay for it."

Quick said this was the reason he wanted the question placed on the ballot in an election so that the people could decide it, themselves.

Rake said, in response to questions from other commissioners, that a plan for the additional facilities and space at the County Home had been drawn up two years ago by architects Rinker and Kiefer. At that time, he said, the cost was estimated at "something around $300,000 I believe."

Commissioners again discussed the possibility of getting Federal or State cooperation, financially, in the construction of the addition.

No official action was taken as far as placing the matter on the ballot was concerned.

Two Crews Answer Alarms

STROUD TOWNSHIP firemen fought two more fires yesterday.

The first alarm came in at 2:30. It was a wood fire near the Tom Carson residence in Poplar Valley. The second alarm was turned in at 3 p. m. It was at the Carl Kohl property off Route 611.

Fire at the Kohl place burned off about a half acre. On the Poplar Valley fire the Saylorburg Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co. joined in the fight.

The Saylorburg company also answered a grass fire alarm in the Ross Common section yesterday.

East Stroudsburg has a glass box style alarm system. Stroudsburg uses a telephone alarm system.

Monroe County School Board Opposes Senate Bill S-35

A secondary aim of the project, as it was originally conceived, however, was to provide school districts and other taxing bodies with an adequate tax base upon which to operate and finance construction.

If the bill were to be passed and become law, it would apparently close out Price or Smithfield participation in school construction with the jointure. Neither of the two townships would be able to raise sufficient taxes to foot their share of the bill.

The bill would mean that both Price and Smithfield—as well as others in the jointure—could raise only 10 percent more in taxes than they have raised during the year before equalization goes in.

County Commissioners in Monroe have estimated that the equalization program "may be finished" by the last of this year. It could not go into effect until the following year, however.

The bill would also affect other taxing districts in which the rise could be only five percent over the previous taxing year.

S-35 specifically excludes from this rule "increased assessed value due to new construction of houses or their improvement."

Legal Value It also provides a legal escape valve for taxing bodies which wish to contest it. This is contained in the provision that townships or school districts could appeal to the Court of Common Pleas to increase tax revenues beyond the confinements of the bill.

Members of Monroe County School Board, acting as individuals, last night said that they had been busy contacting local legislative representatives and pleading for their "opposition to the bill."

Dr. Evan Reese, vice president of the county board, told the Daily Record last night that he had written to Sen. William Z. Scott and asked his opposition to the bill. It has already passed the Senate.

Reese said further that he had talked personally with Monroe County Assemblyman H. L. Cleveland. Cleveland assured him that he intends to oppose the bill, Reese said.

Also expected to take official action on the bill to go on record protesting it are other school boards within the county and the various Parent-Teacher organizations.

Discussing the bill, Reese said that "it would appear that S-35 as it now stands would cripple building plans for any school district which has, up till now, had an abnormally low and unfair rate of assessment."

Bill S-35 was introduced in the Senate by Sens. Stevenson, Mallory, Koprivier and Lane.

Dr. Larkin pointed out that the two significant meanings of St. Patrick's Day to him were: First, the work of St. Patrick as Apostle of Christianity to Ireland in the fifth century; and the heritage of his work to the Irish people, which consisted mainly in their love of the Christian faith, and their love for justice.

Second, the struggle of the Irish, since 1650, to correct the "Wrongs of Ireland" suffered at the hands of the English; and how Irishmen carried this fight with them when they left Erin and dispersed themselves over the face of the earth.

After Oliver Cromwell's victorious invasion of Ireland in 1650, the Irish were dispossessed of their lands, and suffered terrible persecutions under what was called the Irish Penal Code, Dr. Larkin said. During the 18th century and prior to 1776, according to Dr. Larkin, the Irish peasants were reduced to the worst living conditions of any peasantry of Europe.

Oppression The oppression of the Irish peasants, and the struggle of the Irish Revolutionary Army, constantly working underground against the British, were the sources, or inspirations, of the beautiful Irish songs and Irish stories about the "Wrongs of Ireland" during the last 250 years, said the speaker.

Over a million Irish immigrants came to the United States between 1820-1920. They arrived in time to help build the canals and the railroads that were needed to open up the West and to develop our great country. When these large construction jobs were completed 90 percent of the Irish immigrants eventually settled in our cities.

They brought with them their traditions, their folklore, and their love of politics.

In summing up his address Dr. Larkin said: "Let us again repeat Paul McBride's original question: What Does St. Patrick's Day mean to an Irishman today? It recalls to his mind how St. Patrick brought the Christian faith to Ireland in the fifth century; and how his people have been loyal to that faith, in good days and in times of persecution, during the following 15 centuries."

DATES FOR THE Monroe County Fire Training School were set definitely for May 4-5 last night at a meeting of the County Firemen's Assn.

The school, to be conducted in three separate locations, will give volunteer firemen training in dozens of fire fighting techniques.

Association President Harvey Burris said last night that "work days" for construction and preparation of fire training areas will be held on Sundays.

This Sunday, Burris said, all members of all member companies are requested to meet at the Burgoon property on Route 90. The workers will complete work on the sample dwelling being constructed for training purposes.

Pits Work will also be done Sunday on the "pits" being excavated and prepared for use in training in fighting oil fires and other hard-to-control blazes.

The following Sunday workers will assemble at the Day St. East Stroudsburg Fire Co. grounds. Work on the drill tower will be finished then, Burris said.

More than 150 firemen are expected to attend the Fire Training School when it opens May 4. The primary aim of the school is to give all companies—especially those in rural areas—a more complete orientation on fire fighting techniques for all kinds of fires.

Date Set For Highway Bids BIDS FOR TWO area road improvement projects will be opened in Harrisburg on April 12, it was revealed by the Department of Highways yesterday.

The bids will include construction of an I-beam bridge over Raymondskill Creek, west of Millford, an 8th building of two pre-stressed reinforced concrete deck bridges, 20 feet wide, over Wallenpaupack Creek.

Weatherman Sets Record In Area

STROUDSBURG AND East Stroudsburg were caught in the pleasant grasp of record Summer-like temperatures yesterday.

Weatherman William Hagerty, 720 Scott St., Stroudsburg, revealed that the temperature hit a record high for March 14 when thermometers recorded 75 degrees at 3:30 p. m. Hagerty quickly pointed out that this was a record for the day only and not for the month of March.

The local weatherman was unable to provide the previous high mark.

Low Hagerty also revealed that the low yesterday was 27 at 5:45 p. m. Harry Greene, Mount Pocono, reported the high for the day in that locality was 71 degrees at 4:30 p. m. Greene revealed that this was "possibly" a record for the day. But, the weather observer also said that it certainly isn't a record for March.

Greene announced that the low for the day was 42, shortly before 1 a. m.

Number Blue Ridge had about 20 men on the fire; Jackson an estimated 18. Firemen fought the blaze for nearly six hours, finally succeeded in bringing it under control and eliminating the danger of further spreading.

Yesterday the Jackson company was called out to extinguish a three and one half acre blaze on the property of Ervin Frailey, Stroudsburg RD 3. This fire was caused by burning brush, firemen said.

Pocono Township firemen joined with Jackson volunteers in fighting yesterday's blaze, the Reiders company said.

Free Flow Of Air Prevents Frost Injury To Strawberry

By George Abraham
STRAWBERRY TIPS: You can have that dream strawberry patch if the soil and location are just right. Strawberries need good air circulation—that is, no air pockets. A free flow of air will prevent frost injury to blooms and also the growth of fungus diseases.

Heavy clay soils are bad for strawberries. Without good drainage the plants are stunted and if you do happen to get fruit on such soils there's often loss due to excess moisture. If the soil is loose and mellow your plants have a better chance of producing. When you buy strawberry plants you'll note they have a husky, broom-like growth of roots. You'd think that with such a large amount of roots the plants would take right off and grow easily.

Actually, it's not these yellow, broom-like roots that grow. When a strawberry plant starts its new growth in the spring, it sends out fine feeder roots from the old, yellow roots. That means you should set your plants out before new growth is started. The earlier in the spring you plant the sets, the easier they are to make growth. Plants set out before new growth is started have enough food stored in them to send out fine feeder roots. You hardly ever lose a plant if set out when completely dormant.

Insist on disease-free, at least virus-free plants. There's no use planting diseased plants. Also don't on using a Summer and Winter mulch. The Winter mulch, we all know, prevents heating of plants from the soil. The Summer mulch of straw prevents evaporation, saves moisture, and thus keeps the ground temperature down. As long as the soil temperature is cool, your berries will make nice size. Berries ripen small if the soil temperature is high or if moisture is low.

Dog Troubles: How can you keep dogs from digging holes in lawns, burning shrubs? There's no easy answer to this problem, but we're passing along a few suggestions: First, there are many dog repellents, but their odors weaken, so if you use them be sure to use frequently. Moth balls work for some, not for others. One reader dips cotton in ammonia and places in her evergreens. Arborvitae are highly susceptible to dog-burn, so it's a good idea to fence these off. Nicotine sulfate, 1 teaspoon to a quart of water, will repel cats and dogs, but like most dog repellents they have fleeting effect.

I use rope repellent on my evergreens and it works fine. As a final word, do not use bonemeal in the garden, if dogs are a problem. The scent of bones sets them to digging.

Question Box

M. K. B., of Stroudsburg: "Each year I start seeds of tomatoes and peppers indoors. The seed germinate fine but as soon as the plants are about 1 inch high, they wilt right down and top over. Some are very spindly at the base. What makes this?"

Your trouble is due to "damping-off" disease, caused by fungus organisms in the soil. The best way to lick this is to sterilize the soil first before sowing seed. One way to do this is to bake the soil (and container) in an oven for 1/2 hr. at 250 to 300 degs. Moisten the soil first and bake. Some gardeners pour boiling water on the soil. A cooking thermometer is inserted in the soil and then hot water is poured onto the mixture until the temperature reaches 180 degs. Allow soil to dry a day or so before sowing seed.

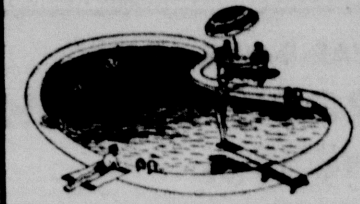

Others use a pressure cooker for sterilizing soils. The soil is "cooked" for 10 minutes at 5 lbs. pressure. Some still use formaldehyde. Dilute 2 1/2 tablespoons of commercial formaldehyde with about 12 tablespoons of water and sprinkle over a bushel of soil, mixing thoroughly. Cover with canvas or plastic sheets. Wait a day or so and sow seeds. Then water soil well after sowing. Then too, there are commercial disinfectants on the market that work with varying degrees of success. Be sure to use them according to manufacturer's recommendations.

Another good way to avoid damping-off is to sow seed in a sterile medium such as vermiculite, and similar materials. Clean sand washed with boiling water is used by many florists. The first step is to put 1/2 inch of clean sand on top of the soil, then the seed is sown on this, and covered with more washed sand. We like to use shredded sphagnum moss, obtainable from florists or in swamps. This material is almost sterile. A 1/4" layer of moss is placed on soil, and seed is sown in the moss and covered lightly. Make sure the moss is moistened first, since watering may dislodge or wash out the seed.

Total 1956 earned premiums are $270,838,066, up 17 per cent over 1955, the best previous year, and net premiums written reached a record $287,250,728, an 18 per cent increase, according to Bill Arnold, local agent for the Bloomington, Ill., firm.

The company took over leadership of the entire fire and casualty field in 1955, but has led in auto insurance for 15 years. State Farm Mutual insures 4,650,000 cars, about one of every 11 in its main operating areas, he said.

In 1956, State Farm Mutual earned auto premiums of $263,781,396 to out-distance its nearest auto competitor by $27,507,577 and widen its 1955 lead by almost $10,000,000, Arnold reported.

Two Highway Projects To Begin Soon

A PUBLIC Utilities Coordination Committee for Berks, Carbon, Lehigh, Monroe, Northampton and Schuylkill counties has notified Monroe County Commissioners that work on two major county highway projects is expected to begin this summer.

Notification received by Commissioners yesterday at their regular meeting showed the following:

Construction on Route 169 between Blakeslee and Mount Pocono may begin this summer. The highway is a connecting link with major highways leading out of and through the Pocono Mountains area.

Saylorburg Plans for Route 796 from Wind Gap to Saylorburg are now 75 percent completed. Construction may be started this year. Public hearings on the highway were held in Wind Gap of Feb. 21.

Also involved in the construction of Route 796 are railroad and pipeline companies according to the committee.

The committee reported that the following projects are "strictly in the planning stages":

Route 611 between Martins Creek and Mount Bethel.

St. Patrick To Be Theme Of Three Sunday Services

ST. PATRICK, an Evangelical Catholic, will be the topic of the sermon at each of the three services Sunday morning at Christ Episcopal Church, Stroudsburg. It was announced by Rev. Charles A. Park, rector.

St. Patrick is one of the great missionary saints of the early British Church, founded about A. D. 500.

by St. Joseph of Arimathea, which became the mother church of the modern Anglican Communion, said Rev. Park. He was born at Dumbarton, Scotland, about 373 A. D.

Later his family settled at "Bannavem Taberniae" on the southwest coast of Britain.

The local rector said St. Patrick's father, Calpornius, was a deacon in the British Church, and also a Town Councillor. His grandfather, Potitus, was a priest of the Church. His Celtic name was Succat. Having studied at Lerins and Auxerre in Gaul, in 432 on the death of the Irish Bishop, Palladius, he was consecrated Bishop of Ireland; and sponsored by the Church of Gaul, he set forth on his missionary work.

According to Rev. Park, Patrick was helped by the Irish Christians, though few in number, in strengthening their Church's life and organizations and in spreading Christianity. In 451 he made Armagh the ecclesiastical capital of Ireland, and his direct successor today as Primate of All Ireland is the Episcopal Archbishop of Armagh whose cathedral occupies the site of Patrick's church, said Rev. Park.

St. Patrick died in 473 and is buried at the Episcopal Cathedral of Downpatrick, he recalled.

Marines To Feature Recruit Drive

AN ALL-OUT recruiting campaign by Sixth Truck Co., U. S. Marine Corps Reserve will be conducted tomorrow in Stroudsburg, at the Penn-Stroud.

Major Joseph W. Murray, Crocco, is the commanding officer of the unit. A veteran of 14 years of service in the Corps, Murray assumed command on June 2, 1956.

"We are looking forward to a successful recruiting drive," Maj. Murray said yesterday. "The Sixth Truck Co. is now getting started in this area. We anticipate having a full battalion of men within two years and with our new training center, we will definitely be a going concern."

Murray urged all young men interested in the Marine Corps Reserve to inquire today at recruiting headquarters in the Penn-Stroud Hotel. Reserve programs will be discontinued after April 1 of this year, he said.

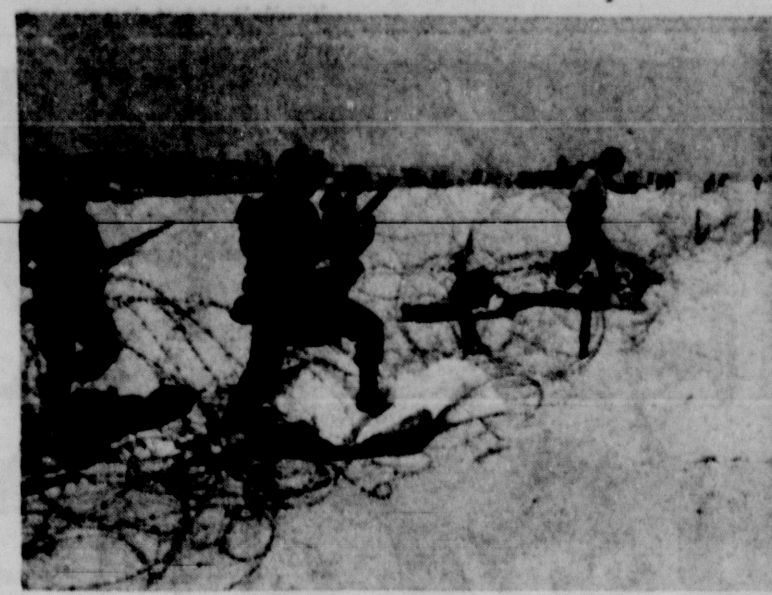

Sixth Truck Co. has a short but brilliant history. It was first activated in Dickson City in June, 1952. The training center was moved to Stroudsburg in May, 1956.

At the present time, the company has plans for a complete renovation of the unit's training center. It is anticipated that by the end of 1958 the training center will be "one of the finest in the Marine Corps," Murray said.

The company now has 100 men and eight officers. Nearly all of the men come from the Stroudsburg and Scranton areas.

Aside from its own individual training program—which is as highly developed as any motor transport training system in the State—the company each year goes on two weeks of Summer training at a major Marine Corps installation.

On August 17, 1957, the unit will leave for Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, for its annual training period.

BETTER MEN, BETTER TRAINING—This scene is typical of training given to men from the Sixth Truck Co., USMC during their annual two-weeks Summer training period. Picture was taken last year at Little Creek, Va. Summer encampment.

Eat Your Troubles Away! Ancient Cereal Helpful Today

By Leiford Kordel
Installment Eleven

THE MANY thousands of readers of my Eat-and-Grow-Younger series showed such a tremendous interest in millet seeds as a worthwhile addition to the protein diet—that I feel re-emphasizing the subject can help many thousands more.

Little by little, modern nutritional science is inclining to the belief that whole seed cereals can supply for your diet a now missing something that formerly was there when life and eating habits were much closer to the primitive.

In fact, several biochemists have told me it is their private opinion that only when we regain that missing "something" in our diets which the primitive peoples enjoyed will we find the preventive for many of our deficiency and wasting diseases. Modern diets ignore the axiom, that seeds hold the germ of life. Too often overlooked is the fact that nature has placed in seed foods the concentrated essence of all nutrition in order to provide nourishment for the sprouting plant.

Only one part of any plant is outstandingly rich in protein and that is the seed. Proteins are concentrated in the seeds of a plant, so that the new life may receive ample nourishment for normal growth.

How many times this past year has your table been graced with millet, steel-cut oats, whole un-bolited cornmeal, raw wheatgerm, sesame seed or sunflower seed?

Let me introduce you to millet—one of the new-old seed cereals about which you probably know very little, but which should be on your table regularly.

Little known in this country, except as poultry and animal feed, millet has been one of the principal grains of Eastern Europe, Africa, Siberia and China for centuries.

Contrary to popular belief, millet and not rice is the basic food of most Chinese in their native country. Only the small-statured, least robust southern Chinese subsist on rice. The tall, sturdy, vigorous northern Chinese have used millet as their principal food for many centuries.

Non-Fattening
Millet is a completely balanced grain, non-fattening, non-acid forming and rich in high-grade protein, minerals, vitamins and lecithin (the same tasty substance found in egg yolk, and containing that valuable B-vitamin, choline).

Laboratory investigations have revealed that no food is digested with as great ease as millet. It does not ferment in the stomach, causing digestive and intestinal distress, as do foods made from white flour and other devitalized grains.

After World War I, millions of peasants in White Russia faced starvation. In desperation, they ate the millet which had been put away for the chickens they no longer had.

And what happened? Not only did these peasants survive the long period of famine, but they soon discovered they were enjoying better health than they had ever known while consuming their former varied diets.

One who had suffered from stomach ulcers for 15 years, found that his ulcers disappeared in six months on this forced diet of nothing but millet.

Dr. John Harvey Kellogg declared that millet is the only cereal capable of supporting human life when used as the sole item in the diet. Of course, no one wants to live exclusively on millet—unless forced to do so as were those desperate Russian peasants. But if worse came to worst, scientists are convinced that you could live on a diet of nothing but millet, and not only survive, but become even healthier and more vigorous than you ever were.

The completeness and high quality of the protein in millet make it possible for your body to be well supplied with all the essential amino acids, even though little or no other protein foods are eaten.

This is a fact which I believe should be more widely utilized by dietitians and homemakers during times of meat scarcities and meat rationing. During meat rationing, home economists promoted, as meat substitutes, rice, macaroni, spaghetti and noodle dishes. Starch is never a safe substitute for protein.

Safe Minimum
The only foods which should ever appear in the menu as an honest substitute for a meat dish are eggs, cheese, milk and high-protein seed cereals. By adding extra amounts of dry skim milk (a rich source of protein) to these truly protein meat substitutes, a meatless diet may be prevented from falling far below a safe daily minimum of 100 to 150 grams of protein.

Now don't get the idea that I'm recommending that you do away with meat in your diet, and substitute millet. Meat is an unexcelled, hard-to-replace food, but there are thousands of persons living on incomes that won't permit their purchasing meat every day in the week. For that reason, I believe that more recognition should be given to millet (sunflower seeds, too) as a nutritionally safe, low-cost, easily digestible meat substitute.

Millet for human use is available at all health-food stores. The variety sold in feed or bird stores is not fit for human consumption, since the hard, outer coat has not been removed. This makes it impervious to cooking.

For that reason, when buying millet seed, it is wise to be sure to get the "hulled" variety. Millet is also available ground into a meal, which can be used in precisely the same way corn meal is used.

In preparing millet porridge—(using either the "hulled" seed or the ground meal)—one cup of millet to four cups of liquid is about right. Heat the liquid—which may be water, milk, or half-water-half-milk—until it bubbles. Add the millet slowly, stirring constantly to prevent scorching or sticking.

Millet is a seed cereal which is both satisfying and easily digestible. It merits a place in every diet, for gradually it will take away your desire for white breads and rich pastries.

Firemen Answer Alarms

MARSHALLS CREEK volunteer firemen were called on three grass fire alarms yesterday. All three were caused by rampant rubbish fires.

The first was at 11:55 a.m. at the Victor Hoehne residence, East Stroudsburg RD 2. It burned off about an acre and a half.

The second alarm came in at 12:25 p.m. while firemen were still fighting the Hoehne blaze. It was on Route 209 at "The Pines" near the Brick Church. That fire was "under control" before firemen actually arrived at the scene.

The third occurred at 1:27 p.m. at the home of Frank Miller a mile and a half north of Marshalls Creek. It burned off about a half an acre, fire chief Miller said.

School Board Meets With Paradise PTA

Swiftwater—A need for a tax adjustment to meet the budget for Paradise Township was explained by the Board of Education when they met jointly with the Parent-Teachers Association at the school, Monday night. Other information concerning the procedures of the board was given, including the work of the jointure toward a better educational system.

Mrs. Alvin Zeigler presided at the meeting of the PTA, substituting for Mrs. Alfred Freeland, who is on leave-of-absence. Due to the resignation of the vice-president, members elected Mrs. David Toms for that post.

In a report of the Playground Committee by Mrs. Donald Brown, chairman, it was disclosed that donations are slow, but about one-sixth of the goal has been realized. Mrs. Brown urged people of the community to answer the appeal as soon as possible in order that equipment may be ordered at the earliest possible date and installed.

In connection with the playground report, Alfred Freeland announced that the Rotary Club of Mt. Pocono is planning a pro-

Just Between Us

—by Bobby Westbrook

How big does the moon seem to you? As big as a pumpkin? A dime? A barn? It always seems to dwindle as it rises and the night darkens and there's nothing but the moon riding high. Anyway last night it seemed big enough to break your heart.

How hot did the sun feel? Well, hot enough to burn away all desire to work, that's for sure, and there were enough parking places in town as everybody who could leave their offices did.

There is, moreover, a sound physical reason for this sun-hunger we feel at this time of the year. It's not just that the warmth feels good after the winter chill, but there's more ultraviolet in the sun this time of year than at any other time.

The forecast is for increasing cloudiness today, so maybe we'll get the house cleaned in time for the weekend, after all. But only after it clouds up, mind you. It's more important to get the cobwebs out of your head than out of your living room.

That's what I tell myself until the moment when somebody leans back in a chair and sees the one in the corner. Then nothing seems bigger or more conspicuous.

But speaking of cobwebs, and haunted houses, and crimes and torment—I'll be glad when the college sophomores, wishing to discuss literature with me, get to something a little more cheerful: "Wuthering Heights" and "Crime and Punishment" are scarcely soothing bedtime reading.

Alpha Class Reviews History On Anniversary

Pocono Lake — The 33rd anniversary of the Alpha Bible Class of the Salem Ev. and Reformed Church school was celebrated at a covered dish dinner at the home of Mrs. Frederick Harold Jr. The class was organized Feb. 9, 1924 by Miss Myra Lavery of Middletown, who was then employed by the Veterans' Bureau at the Vocational School at Pocono Pines. There were 20 charter members who made it one of the liveliest and most progressive church school classes in the rural area.

After Miss Lavery left, Miss Mary Sewell, another employee of the camp, was elected teacher. She left shortly afterward and Mrs. Ed Altemose completed her term of office. She was succeeded by Mrs. Harley P. Henning who taught the class until 1950. Mrs. John Werkheiser was the next teacher. At present, Mrs. Dora Field and Mrs. Mary Miller are the teachers.

Mrs. Milton Everitt was the first president of the class, serving until she moved to Stroudsburg in October 26, Mrs. Ed. Kutzler was elected to take her place.

The class motto is "I Can Do All things in Him that strengthen me, and the class song is "Faith of Our Fathers." It took a little faith to keep the class going between 1940 and 1954 as members moved away and others died.

The activities of the class were confined largely to making quilts for the Bethany Orphans Home and keeping up with their collections for missions.

On April 26, 1954 the class was re-organized and reactivated, and has now a membership of 22, three of whom are home-department members. Mrs. Cleveland Keenhold was elected president; Mrs. Dora Field, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Bonser, who had held the office for 30 years was re-elected treasurer.

During the summer, Mrs. Keenhold and Mrs. Baker made a quilt which brought $69 in the treasury. The class also held three bake sales and last October held a successful turkey supper.

Attending the anniversary dinner were Mrs. Harley P. Henning, Mrs. Harry Altemose, Mrs. Anna Smoko, Mrs. Cleveland Keenhold, Mrs. Dora Field, Mrs. Charles Kinsley, Mrs. Mary Miller, Mrs. J. Wittman, Mrs. A. Gary, Mrs. O. Parker, Mrs. Jennie Kilmore, Mrs. Clarence Bonser and the hostess.

State's New Dep. Treas. Club Speaker

Warner M. Depuy, newly appointed Deputy Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, was the guest speaker at the March meeting of the Pike County Council of Republican Women held at the Ann Street Grange Hall in Milford, a small group of interested women fired numerous questions pertinent to local politics at the young appointee.

Depuy, who is also one of three Pike County Commissioners, was named to his post by State Treasurer Robert F. Kent, which makes this what is believed to be the youngest team ever to head the Commonwealth's financial system. Depuy, 39, is a lifelong resident of Milford. He is a graduate of Milford High School, and received his Bachelor of Science degree in economics from Dartmouth College. He has had eight years' experience in the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, 18 years business experience in the firm of K. M. Depuy and Son, and nine years in the banking field. He has been active in Pike County and state politics for a number of years.

Depuy did not make a formal speech to the Republican women's organization, but conducted a question and answer period which covered politics in Pike County from the local committee-men all the way up to the duties and responsibilities of county sheriff and district attorney. The questions asked Mr. Depuy included requests for information on how to file for an office, the purpose for which filing fees are used, costs of elections, remuneration of various county officers, personnel of an election board, duties of the county sheriff, and costs of prisoner care. He will assume his duties as State Deputy Treasurer on May 6 at 129 Finance Building, Harrisburg.

During the short business meeting which followed, notice was given of a proposed amendment

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

There are fashion shows and fashion shows . . . but at 6 o'clock this evening we are going to have one of very particular interest in our Tea Room when the winning entries of the Girls' Home Economics Clothing Exhibit will be modeled for parents, friends, and the general public.

These fashion shows became an annual occurrence at Wyckoff's something more than a decade ago when Miriam Lark was director of home economics for our county. Each year, along about this time, Miss Lark literally took over our store, and, with her girls, gave us all a glorious idea of what can be accomplished, fashion-wise, with a few yards of material, a needle, a thread, and some know-how. One year, I recall, it was merry bedlam in my office . . . the girls were using it as their dressing room, and somewhere amid the racks of dresses, the chirping, excited voices, the boxes and piles of accessories, I was trying frantically to write a column, answer the telephone, keep track of my papers, and hold onto my wits.

That was the year, I remember, when a beautiful evening gown was the winner of the Daily Record's orchid as the outstanding garment shown. As I stood in the center aisle and watched the slender, attractive young woman who had made it, walk toward the Tea Room steps with the pride of a young queen at her coronation, I began to feel that all the preliminary excitement and headaches had been worthwhile. I was standing next to Merle Ostrom, then manager of the newspaper, and he seemed pretty proud too. I realized then that Miss Lark was doing more than presenting a show of her students' work . . . she was providing every girl yet to enter a home economics class with an incentive; and giving those, who had done well, a public pat on the back which would thereafter remain one of the milestones of their lives, along with graduation, marriage, and their first child.

Last year, the home economics exhibit was not held. Miss Lark had become Mrs. Mark . . . she was ill, we were sorry to learn, and there seemed no one willing to assume the gigantic task. But the shows are being revived this year with Miss Mary Hall, home economics supervisor of Stroudsburg High School, stepping most adequately into the breach.

Miss Hall, a pretty, pleasant young woman, with short dark hair and a ready smile, was the guest of our Wyckoff broadcast Wednesday to talk about tonight's fashion show. Even as she was chatting away, the judges were busy going over the racks of dresses, looking for style, sewing perfection, and maybe a bit of originality. Her thoughts, I knew, were with them . . . and with the 250 or more girls from Monroe County, the Greene-Dreher school of Wayne County, and Bangor High School, Northampton County, who had entered their party dresses, skirts, blouses, house coats, sleeping attire and accessories with dreams in their eyes and hopes pinned high. Cash awards are to be given in each class, and there are prizes too for the remodeling of old garments.

The girls are not limited in the amount of money they may put into their projects, except by their own budgets, and they are allowed to change patterns as they see fit, creating original touches that are distinctly their own. Tonight's show will give approximately 60 winners an opportunity to model their entries.

One of the important awards is the Miriam Lark Award, created and presented by the Stroudsburg Woman's Club. This will go to the best-made item in the show, in tribute to the woman who started it all and whose shoes, according to Miss Hall, are pretty difficult to fill. We at Wyckoff's extend our fond respects to both women . . . and our pride in all the participants is at the bursting point!

It's certainly a shame more fans aren't able to take in the Junior Gold Medal Basketball Tournament at the Stroudsburg YMCA last night.

The caliber of play is good; the top-notch condition of each participant brings out the best in each individual; and the intense rivalry built up over the years by high school players in East Stroudsburg, Stroudsburg and Monroe County schools is embedded into each team vying for the championship.

Perhaps the starting time of most of the classic contests has something to do with keeping the attendance below the desired total.

But the kickoff times for the first round and quarter-final clashes are an obstacle that tournament director Ray Davies had no control. With the Pocono Mountain League still in regular season play during the nights at the "Y," the only time the court was available was from 5 to 8 p.m. Thus, the Junior Gold Medal must get their games off when most people are sitting down to the supper table.

The idea behind the Gold Medal classic is not to make a buck but to develop the character of the boys and all of the participants are boys who are either in high school or are leaving this June. This is being done on a high plain, but it is too bad more people can't see the growth.

The Varsity "B" Association of Stroudsburg has handed over their one-year old press box to Stroudsburg's Joint School Board.

The news and radio enclosure at Gordon Giffels Field was constructed by "S" work members with the valuable help of Clarence Booth, custodian at Stroudsburg High.

Schaut's Foundation Softball Team is looking for night games with any first-class outfit in the area. Schaut's would prefer playing in their well-lighted stadium.

Local and area teams wishing further information may do so by writing Charles P. Gallagher, 156 East Grove St., Scranton, Pa.

The Strouds baseball team will be one of the nattiest dressed in the state this year. Recently the club purchased up-to-date suits for the Pocono Mountain League entrants.

The uniforms are of the latest design and will not have any advertisements hanging from each suit.

Monies derived from the Tom Waring Concert and other Stroud-backed projects were used in making the $500 deal.

The Strouds plan to hand down their old uniforms to "minor" teams which the club will sponsor this year.

Lock Haven STC just completed its fifth straight Teachers Conference wrestling season without a defeat, running its streak to 26 straight STC wins.

Bald Eagle mat coach Herb Jack now has a record of 51 wins, four losses and one tie in 12 years of tutoring Lock Haven grapplers.

Merle Agnello, STC conference publicity director, says that Indiana looms as the "team to beat" in next year's basketball league. Of course, he hasn't reckoned with West Chester or Millersville, who have won it four straight times.

Stroudsburg High's baseball team will go outdoors next week, weather permitting. Coach Jerry Stulgaitis plans drills daily right up to the time the Mountaineers open their season.

WVPO, Barrett, Callie's Gain In Gold Medal Play

Co-op, Steve's, Sommers' Eliminated In Close Tilts

RADIO STATION WVPO, Barrett and Callie's of Bangor were the survivors as the Junior Gold Medal Basketball Tournament went into its second day of action at the Stroudsburg YMCA last night.

WVPO, on a last second goal by Tom Gross, eliminated Monroe Co-op Dairy, 39-37; Barrett, with four members of the high school varsity in the lineup, ousted Sommers' Ribbon, 35-31; and Callie's actually Bangor High's regulars, cut down Steve's Recreation, 51-49.

Two games are scheduled for today as Buck's Soda Mart makes its first start against Ethel's Market at 6 p.m., and Pocono, also making its first tournament appearance, takes on WVPO in the 7 p.m. contest.

Gross' game-winning goal clinched an uphill battle of WVPO in its victory over Monroe Co-op. The Dairyman, with Polk and Chestnuthill High players in their lineup, grabbed a 13-6 edge in the first period before WVPO rallied to a 15-15 halftime score.

The Radio Station five went out ahead 23-23 in the third period but Monroe came back to take a 37-33 edge. Goals by Ted Williams and Dick Everett overtook one by Monroe's Earle Everett and set up Gross' clincher.

Leo Frailey, who kept WVPO in it the first half, shared game scoring laurels with Monroe's Charley Raub and Dick Scarsa as each earned 11. Ted Williams was the other big man for WVPO with 10, while Everett tossed in 10 for the Dairyman's second best.

Trio Pace

With Gordon DiFuria, Jerry Cheslock and Reed Gravel leading the way, Barrett jumped off to a 12-6 first quarter edge and held a 16-13 advantage over Sommers' at halftime. Barrett moved up a point, 26-22, in the third and then matched the Ribbon down the stretch to preserve the win.

DiFuria was high for Barrett with 10, followed by Cheslock's nine and Gravel's eight.

Mike Woodnick, Harry Miller and Jerry Gartner led Sommers' with eight markers each, apiece.

Proves Margin

A two-point lead at the end of the first period proved to be the margin as Callie's ousted Steve's Recreation.

With King Beers, East Stroudsburg High's scoring great leading all point-getters, Steve's kept in the battle from start to finish.

J. L. Williams and Frankie Butz, Callie's one-two punch, matched Beers, who had 21 and Bob Gordon, who came in Steve's second best with 11 and 18 and 14 respectively.

New 20-Second Rule Stymies Umpire, Wehmier And Cards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Baseball's new 20-second rule was introduced here yesterday—and all was confusion.

The umpire last the count, pitcher Herman Wehmier of the St. Louis Cardinals lost his temper, and the Cardinals lost the game.

The rule was not into effect this year in an effort to speed up games. It provides specifically that a pitcher must not use up more than 20 seconds from the time he receives the ball from the catcher until the moment he delivers the ball back to the catcher.

Wehmier was pitching to Gus Zernial of the Kansas City Athletics. The count was two balls and a strike. Wehmier was about to make the next pitch, Zernial stepped out of the batter's box to wipe his forehead.

And Umpire Hal Dixon, behind the plate, called "ball," enforcing the rule.

Wehmier's red face turned even redder. Cardinal Manager Fred Hutchinson failed to hear the umpire's call but, sensing something was wrong, he asked Dixon what the count was. Two balls and a strike, Dixon replied.

Catcher Hal Smith and others agreed later the count was two-and-one before Dixon enforced the rule. The umpire said he had thought it was one-and-one. Thus Hutchinson still wasn't aware the rule had been enforced as the game proceeded.

Homer Into Bay

Wehmier, boiling because he felt he had been penalized for politeness in refraining from delivering the pitch, rared back and fired a fat one as hard as he could throw. Zernial connected with a mighty swing. The ball sailed into Tampa Bay for a home run.

That third-inning homer, accounting for Kansas City's third run, made all the difference. The Athletics won the game 5-4.

Greene-Dreher, Delaware In Third Meeting

NEWFOUNDLAND — Wayne County Conference's champion, Greene-Dreher, today goes after the District 12, Class C PIAA crown today when the Stags of Henry Arneberg take on Delaware Valley in Fell High's gymnasium, near Carbondale.

The Stags, idle since last Friday in tournament play, will be facing the Milford suburban five for the third time this season. In two exhibition games between the two schools — each quintet managed to come up with a win.

Today's contest, which gets under way at 8 p.m., is the "big one" for both the Stags and Delaware. A victory by either side will propel the winner into inter-district competition Monday against the District Three titlist.

Greene-Dreher-Stirling wound up drills yesterday for the Delaware test, stressing both defense and offense in the final workout. The Stags' that has carried the Newfoundland — situated quintet through 16 successes in 18 over-all starts this season.

Expected to be ready when Arneberg gives the get going sign are Captain Johnny Hinds, Bob Haag, Dick and Don Olsson and Howie Phillips. Also ready for duty is No. 6 man Bob Rohrbacher.

14-2 Record
In 16 games this season, Delaware Valley has lost only twice. The first after 11 straight triumphs was to Franklin High of New Jersey, while the second was handed out by today's rival, Greene-Dreher-Stirling.

The Milford suburban play independent ball, having no affiliation with any league.

Granite State Quintet Quits

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 14 — The withdrawal of Nashua, N.H., from the sixth annual Biddy basketball tournament was announced today by the tournament staff.

Nashua had been invited to the tourney as a representative of one of the newest Biddy basketball leagues in the country. Biddy basketball is played by boys 9 to 12 on courts reduced in size from adult standards.

The New Hampshire squad said that because of its newness more seasoning was needed before it entered tournament play.

The withdrawal leaves 15 teams in the March 20-23 event. As a result Gary, Ind., the scheduled first round opponent of Nashua, gets a first round bye and automatically qualifies for the quarterfinals.

Cadilli To Meet Chestnut In Tver

NEW YORK, March 14 — Gil Cadilli of Los Angeles and Ike Chestnut of New York, a couple of speedy featherweights who would like to crash the division's elimination tournament, match boxing skills in a return bout tomorrow night.

They will meet in a radio-television (NBC 10 p.m., EST) ten-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Cadilli edged Chestnut by one point in their first meeting at Houston, Tex., last Oct. 30. The return is rated just as close, 6-5 and take your pick.

Cadilli has a 27-8-3 record including nine knockouts. Chestnut's record is 22-4-3 with three kayos.

Hawks Win, Face Lakers For Title

ST. LOUIS, March 14 — The St. Louis Hawks, scoring 45 points in a rousing second quarter, defeated the Fort Wayne Pistons 115-103 today in the first playoff game to decide first place in the Western Division of the National Basketball Assn.

Braves Pound Dodgers

BRADENTON, Fla., March 14 — The Milwaukee Braves pounded out 14 hits, including four home runs, to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers 12-9 today and hand the National League champions their third setback in six exhibition games.

The big blow in the Braves' attack was a pinch-hit homer by Andy Pafko with the bases filled in the fourth inning. Jim Pendleton walloped a three-run pinch homer in this eight-run frame.

Johnny Podres was the victim of Milwaukee's fourth inning uprising.

Crowe Paces Redlegs

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 14 — With first baseman George Crowe pacing the attack, the Cincinnati Redlegs today whipped Pittsburgh 7-4. It was the Pirates' first exhibition setback after five victories.

Crowe rapped a two-run single in the first inning and added a two-run homer on his last trip in the eighth. Rookie outfielder Art Schulte of Cincinnati also hit a home run with one aboard in the first.

The Redlegs sent five runs across in the opening frame before southpaw Paul Minner could retire a man.

Pinch rookie Dick Stuart hit his third exhibition home run in the second inning. Ramon Mejias collected a single and a triple for the Pirates.

Yanks Edge Tigers

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14 — A line drive single to right center by rookie Tony Kubek following Gil McDougald's tenth inning triple today gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 exhibition game victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Yankees picked up their first run in the opening inning on successive singles by Bobby Richardson, Jerry Lumpe and Mickey Mantle. They scored in the fourth on singles by Yogi Berra and McDougald and Kubek's grounder. The Tigers tied the score in the seventh on a walk, a single by Roy Smal, a two-base throwing error by left fielder Bob Marly and a balk by righthander Mame Freeman.

Bosox Blank Cards

SARASOTA, Fla., March 14 — Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell handed out four walks in the first inning to pave the way for as many runs as the Boston Red Sox pinned a 4 to 0 shutout on the St. Louis Cardinals before 2,080 fans at Payne Park today.

Mizell failed to get a batter out, although only two earned runs were charged against him.

Orioles Nip Giants

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz., March 14 — A pinch hit single by rookie outfielder Joe Durham with one in the eighth inning gave the Baltimore Orioles a 7-6 victory over the New York Giants today.

Pitcher Charley Beamon hit a long fly to left and when Giant outfielder Foss Castleman wrenched his left knee on the play, the ball rolled away for a triple. Billy Gardner fanned but Durham, batting for Al Pilarick, singled over second and Beamon crossed the plate with the clinching run.

Phils Squeeze By A's

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 14 — A ninth-inning home run by Bobby Morgan of Philadelphia offset a late rally by Kansas City to give the Phils a 7-6 victory, their third in a row, over the Athletics today.

Morgan's one-out home run was his second of the day.

Chisox Tame Nats

TAMPA, Fla., March 14 — Jim Rivera slapped two home runs and Jim Landis smashed one to lead the Chicago White Sox to a slashing 12 to 2 triumph over the Washington Senators today.

A Bouquet of Beautiful Hats

SPRING OPENING

GLAMOUR'S brewing when you steep a lustrous Panamalac Ctraw dome in yards of gracefully draped tulle, trimmed with a single big rose.

CHIFFON draped skillfully over bouffant souffle straw, jewel trimmed, fashions our smart bloused pill-box.

THE BRETON is a perennial favorite that grows lovelier each year. We present it in top straw spiced across the brim with rich venise lace.

A SAILOR can always turn a pretty head! Organza drapes the crown, and the rose is placed for gay flat-tery.

PERIDO straw with braided tulle cuff wins fashion's approval in an adorable draped pillbox. Pertly pretty with veil, rhinestone and feather.

PEACHY is the adjective that best describes our Peachbasket hat of beautiful souffle touched with rhinestones. It's daringly chiel
